Author Study Book List

Korean-American Author, Yangsook Choi

Yangsook Choi grew up in Korea and arrived in the USA when she was twenty four to study art. She went through several career changes, which included working as a flight attendant and studying interior design. However, she always knew she "would use [her] profession as a channel to somehow connect to children...[because her] heart was hardened by the injustices towards children by the rules made by self centered grown ups."ⁱ She has written and illustrated many books for children, all of which have a multicultural theme running throughout.

Book List for 2nd to 6th graders

Choi, Y. (1997). The Sun Girl and the Moon Boy: A Korean Folktale (1st ed.). New York: Knopf Books For Young Readers.

Formats: Hardcover

ISBN-10: 067988386X

ISBN-13: 978-0679883869

Synopsis: The author's retelling of a Korean fairy tale similar in some ways to the Little Red Riding Hood story. Long ago, the story tells, there was only darkness. People used lamps to see and avoid the tigers that were common in those days. One day a mother went to market to buy some food, but was eaten by a tiger on her way back. The tiger then put on her clothes and tried to trick the children into believing he was their mother. Eventually the tiger breaks in and chases the children, but their mother saves them by throwing down a rope from Heaven. The boy turns into the moon, while the girl becomes the sun. Now the mother rests in peace because all people now have light to help them see.

WIDA levels: A higher level

Expanding learner will be able to understand, especially with the help of the gorgeous illustrations. If the learner is already familiar with this story, they may understand the narrative quite easily without missing the finer points.

Age Level: 6 and up

Lexile Level: 540L

Choi, Y. (1999). New Cat (1st ed.). New York: Farrar, Straus And Giroux (Byr).

Formats: Hardcover

ISBN-10: 0374355126

ISBN-13: 978-0374355128

Synopsis: A tofu factory owner gets a cat to help keep his business free of mice. However, one tricky mouse outwits the new cat by retreating to the production floor, which the cat cannot reach. The mouse nibbles on some wires, causing an electrical fire that the cat puts out by knocking over a cart of watery tofu. A beautifully illustrated book, portraying the eternal struggle between cat and mouse.

WIDA levels: This book would entertain a Developing level learner, who could understand the ideas in the book through the pictures, but the language is better tailored to an Expanding level learner.

Age Level: 5- 8

Choi, Y. (2005). Peach Heaven (1st ed.). New York: Farrar, Straus And Giroux (Byr).

Formats: Hardcover

ISBN-10: 0374357617

ISBN-13: 978-0374357610

Synopsis: A young girl growing up in the 1970s in Korea loves peaches. During this time, Korea's economy was one of the worst in the world, making peaches expensive and luxurious food. Nonetheless, she dreams of peaches all the time. One day, during monsoon season, it begins to rain peaches. Everyone collects them, and then they understand the mystery of the raining peaches; the peaches had all come from nearby farmer's orchards! Yangsook comes up with an idea to help these farmers, who otherwise would have been devastated.

WIDA levels: Beautifully illustrated, the pictures in this book do most of the talking. Text is minimal. Theme of altruism and helping others—a good match for a Developing or Expanding learner.

Age Level: 6 and up

Choi, Y. (2006). Behind the Mask (First Edition ed.). New York: Farrar, Straus And Giroux (Byr).

Formats: Hardcover

ISBN-10: 0374305226

ISBN-13: 978-0374305222

Synopsis: A great book for multicultural kids about a Korean-American boy. We understand from various clues in the book that the main character, Kimin, grew up in the USA, but through his family is still strongly connected to Korean culture even if he doesn't speak the language well. Not knowing what to be for Halloween one year, Kimin follows his mother's suggestion to put on his grandfather's mask. Kimin's grandfather was a mask dancer, which was highly applauded in Korea, but which scared Kimin as a young boy. The other children at first laugh at Kimin's costume idea, but eventually love it and help him discover more about his family than even Kimin's mother ever knew about.

WIDA levels: Expanding. Has sophisticated themes about family and culture that younger or less advanced ELLs would have difficulty understanding and expressing.

Lexile Level: 610

Age Level: 6 and up

Lee, M. (2006). Earthquake. New York: Farrar, Straus And Giroux (Byr).

Formats: Hardcover

ISBN-10: 0374419469

ISBN-13: 978-0374419462

Synopsis: Written by Milly Lee and illustrated by Yangsook Choi, this story is about the 1906 earthquake, as seen by immigrants in San Francisco's Chinatown.

WIDA levels: The book has minimal text, mostly describing which household items are being packed. Illustrations assist learners to comprehend some unknown vocabulary and make it possible for a high Developing or Expanding level learner to understand. Some place names in San Francisco are mentioned, so understanding of capitalization conventions or familiarity with the city would greatly improve understanding. Author's note at end is historically interesting and relevant to equity issues ELLs may experience—women and immigrants were not counted as those among the dead.

Age Level: 6 and up

Park, F. (2002). Good-Bye, 382 Shin Dang Dong (Library Binding ed.). Washington, DC: National Geographic Children's Books.
Formats: Hardcover
ISBN-10: 0792279859

Synopsis: A tale of an older grade school girl, Jangmi, whose parents are moving with her from Korea to Brighton, Massachusetts. The local setting may look familiar to students here, but to Jangmi everything looks strange and different from Korea. In the end, she makes a new friend and decides maybe her new home isn't so bad after all.

WIDA levels: Expanding or Bridging

Lexile: 620L

Age Level: 4 and up

Choi, Yangsook. The Name Jar. (2003). New York, New York: Dragonfly Books.

Formats: Hardcover

ISBN-10: 0440417996

ISBN-13: 978-0440417996

Synopsis: UneHei recently immigrated to the USA from Korea. On her way to the first day of school, she introduces herself to students, and some of them make fun of her different and hard to pronounce name. Her classmates begin a name jar for her, with suggestions for her new American name, but the day that she is to choose her new name, the jar vanishes. Later she discovers that her friend took the jar so she could keep her Korean name.

WIDA: While his book features some longer blocks of text, complex language (tag questions, past perfect) and richer vocabular (words like enthusiastic, insisted, peculiar, glum), the illustrations and theme make it accessible for high Developing students.

Lexile level: AD290L

Age Level: 4 and up

Wong, J. S. (2000). This Next New Year (1st ed ed.). New York: Farrar, Straus And Giroux (Byr).

Formats: Hardcover

ISBN-10: 0374355037

ISBN-13: 978-0374355036

Synopsis: A half Korean, half Chinese child recounts how and when he and his friends of various ethnicities celebrate the New Year. Students from multicultural families or in multicultural classrooms will relate personally to the various holidays and celebrations.

WIDA: Illustrated by Choi and written by Janet Wong. Beginning learners will find the sentence structure and storyline repetitive enough to follow, but with enough variety to maintain interest.

Age Level: 4 and up

Lee, Milly, Nim and the War Effort. (2002). New York, New York: Square Fish.

Formats: Hardcover

ISBN-10: 0374455066

ISBN-13: 978-0374455064

Synopsis: Set in World War 2 era San Francisco, Nim is a Chinese American girl living in Chinatown. Her school is having a newspaper gathering contest that she is determined to win. Conflict between Nim and the class bully helps Nim find an unexpected supply of newspapers. She wins the contest and the respect of her family and classmates.

WIDA: Page long unbroken chunks of texts with some pictorial support make this more appropriate for high Expanding or Bridging ELLs. Total book length is about 40 pages.
